QUOTE

The secret of change is to focus all of your energy, not on fighting the old, but on building the new.

Dan Millman

Author of
The Way of the Peaceful Warrior

A black and white photograph of a group of people in a meeting. In the center, a laptop is open on a table, displaying a dashboard with charts and graphs. Several people are gathered around the table, with their hands visible as they interact with the laptop and various documents. One person on the left is holding a pen over a document. Another person on the right is pointing at the laptop screen. The background is slightly blurred, showing more people and a textured wall. The overall atmosphere is professional and collaborative.

of what the future
will look like

DESIRABLE

It meets the long-term interests
of employees /
customers / owners

FEASIBLE

It involves realistic, attainable goals

FOCUSED

It's clear enough to guide the decision
making process

FLEXIBLE

It's broad enough to allow for initiative &
different reactions

EASILY
COMMUNICATED

It can be explained
in 5 minutes

INTRODUCTION

ALIGN WITH NEW CONDITIONS

Companies must continually adapt to changing market conditions, customer needs, technologies, input costs, owner expectations and competition.

Companies must either adapt to change or run the risk of becoming redundant, unable to compete with in the market.

The challenge for companies is to support their employees from start to finish and guide them away from cynicism and distrust.

INTRODUCTION

ALIGN WITH NEW CONDITIONS

THERE ARE FOUR TYPICAL PERSONAS WHO REACT TO CHANGE

CRITIC

The ones who loudly oppose to change

VICTIM

The ones who panic when there is a change

SPECTATOR

The ones who avoid involvement

NAVIGATOR

These are the ones who are resilient and capable of adapting to new circumstances

INTRODUCTION

CREATE CHANGE NAVIGATORS

Explaining the need for change as often as necessary

Involving the team in the decision making process

Minimizing uncertainty

Involving of legacy system experts early in the process

Foster the culture of transparency

Creating the learning opportunities for the team

Communicating the risk of not changing

Providing a sounding board for employees concern

Celebrating change

ROLE ALLOCATION

CHANGE MANAGEMENT

PLAYERS

THE SPONSOR

is the one who is the member of the executive management (top management) who:

is responsible for the entire country/area/-branch/domain/department supervises the project and individuals who will implement the change provides resources, resolves disputes and determines the scope of change has a clear vision, and sets objectives and measurable results for the change initiatives

THE CHANGE AGENT

is the person (or group) who assists the country/area/domain/department in implementing the proposed change. His/Her role is to advise and guide the champion and sponsor throughout the change initiative. He/She also:

can assume various roles, such as data collector, educator or mediator

does not have direct authority over sponsors or stakeholders

acts as an expert in the change management process

ROLE ALLOCATION

PLAYERS

THE CHAMPION

is usually the manager of the branch/department/division, who is responsible for making everyday business decisions

ensures sponsors with information about problems and challenges

ensures the appropriate employees are engaged and involved helps the vision come to life

encourages (and occasionally enforces) new and desired behaviors

THE STAKEHOLDER

are the employees who are affected by the change. They must be involved in the process and understand how the change initiative will affect their current situation

JOHN P. KOTTER - PATH TO CHANGE

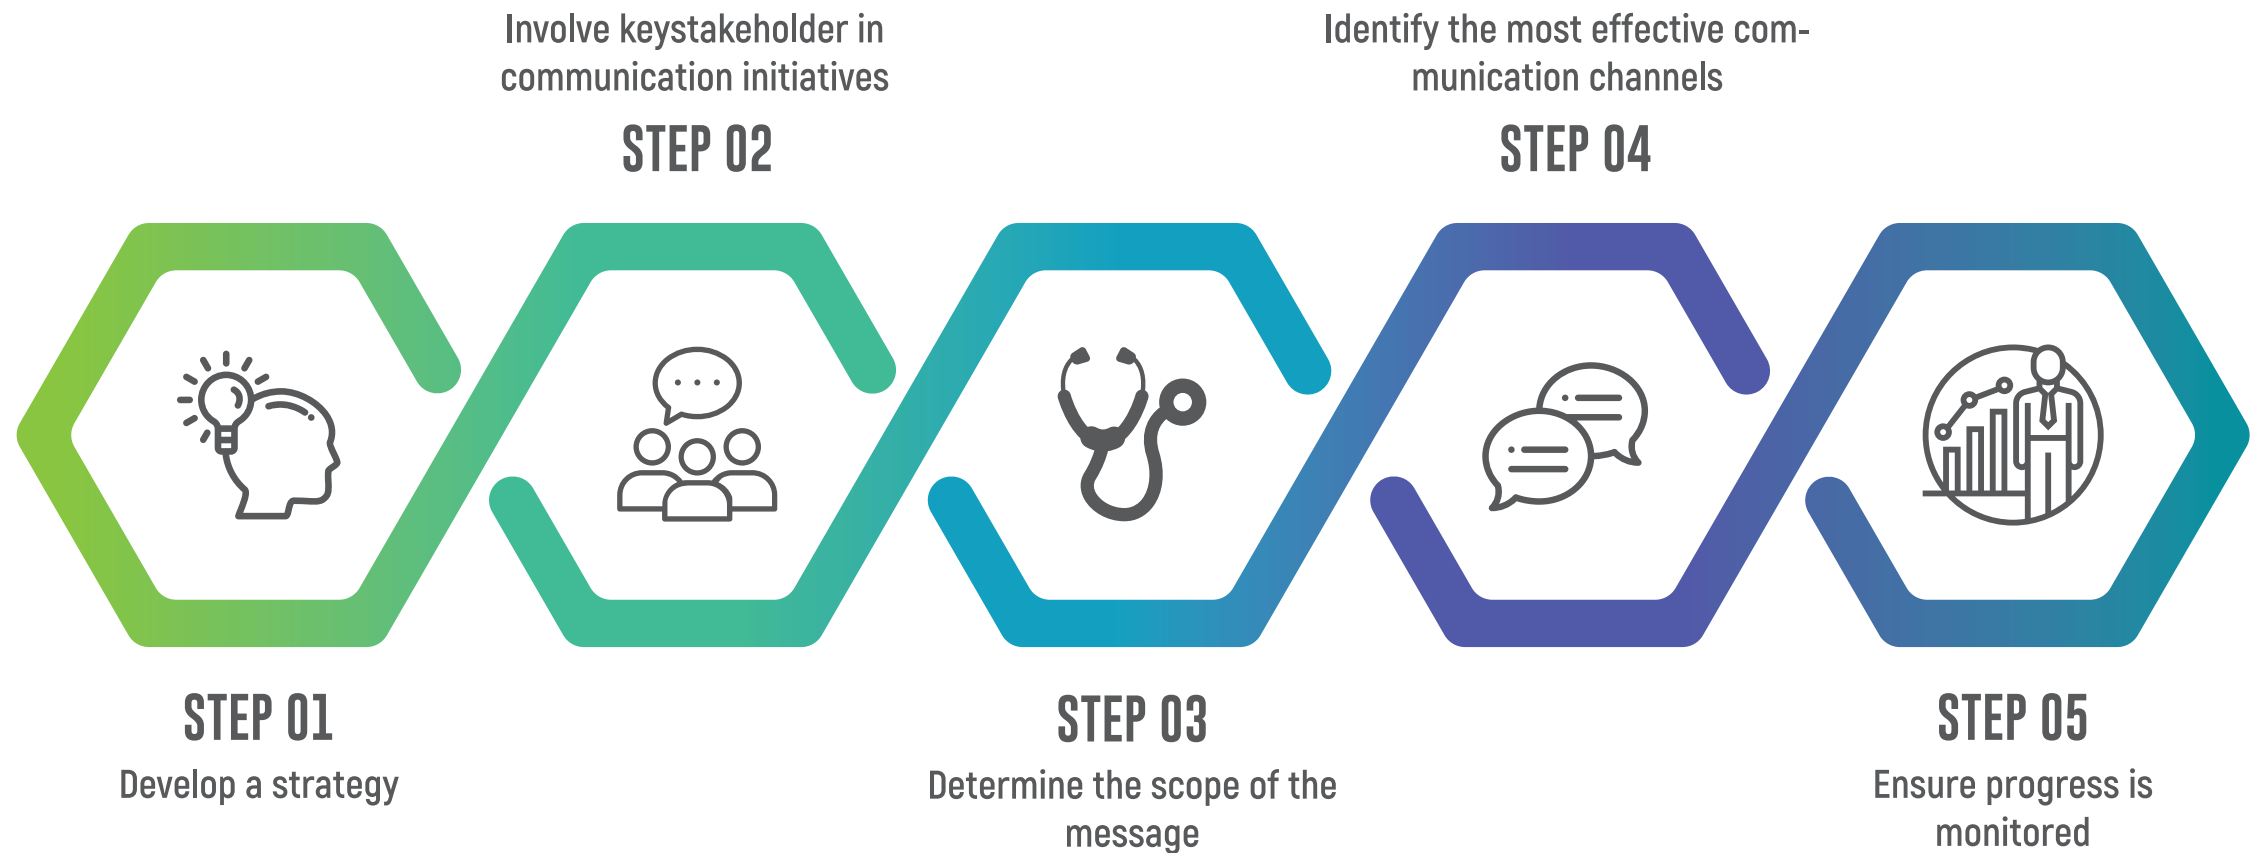

A black and white photograph taken from a low angle looking up at several tall skyscrapers. The buildings are arranged in a way that their edges converge towards the top of the frame, creating a strong sense of height and scale. The windows of the buildings are visible as a grid pattern. The sky is a uniform light gray, providing a high-contrast background for the dark buildings.

COMMUNICATION

CHANGE MANAGEMENT

COMMUNICATION

THE STRATEGY

ADVANTAGES & DISADVANTAGES OF DIFFERENT COMMUNICATION CHANNELS

MASS COMMUNICATION

It is cost-effective

It effectively communicates change in routine

It enables a large audience to be reached quickly and continuously

Its impersonal

Employees may not read mass communication (in some cases)

It creates an environment in which employees may be reluctant to ask questions or give feedback

FACE-TO-FACE COMMUNICATION

It allows executives to reinforce the value of the change initiative

It allows employees to ask questions right away and give feedback

It enables employees to obtain information directly from managers

Its time consuming

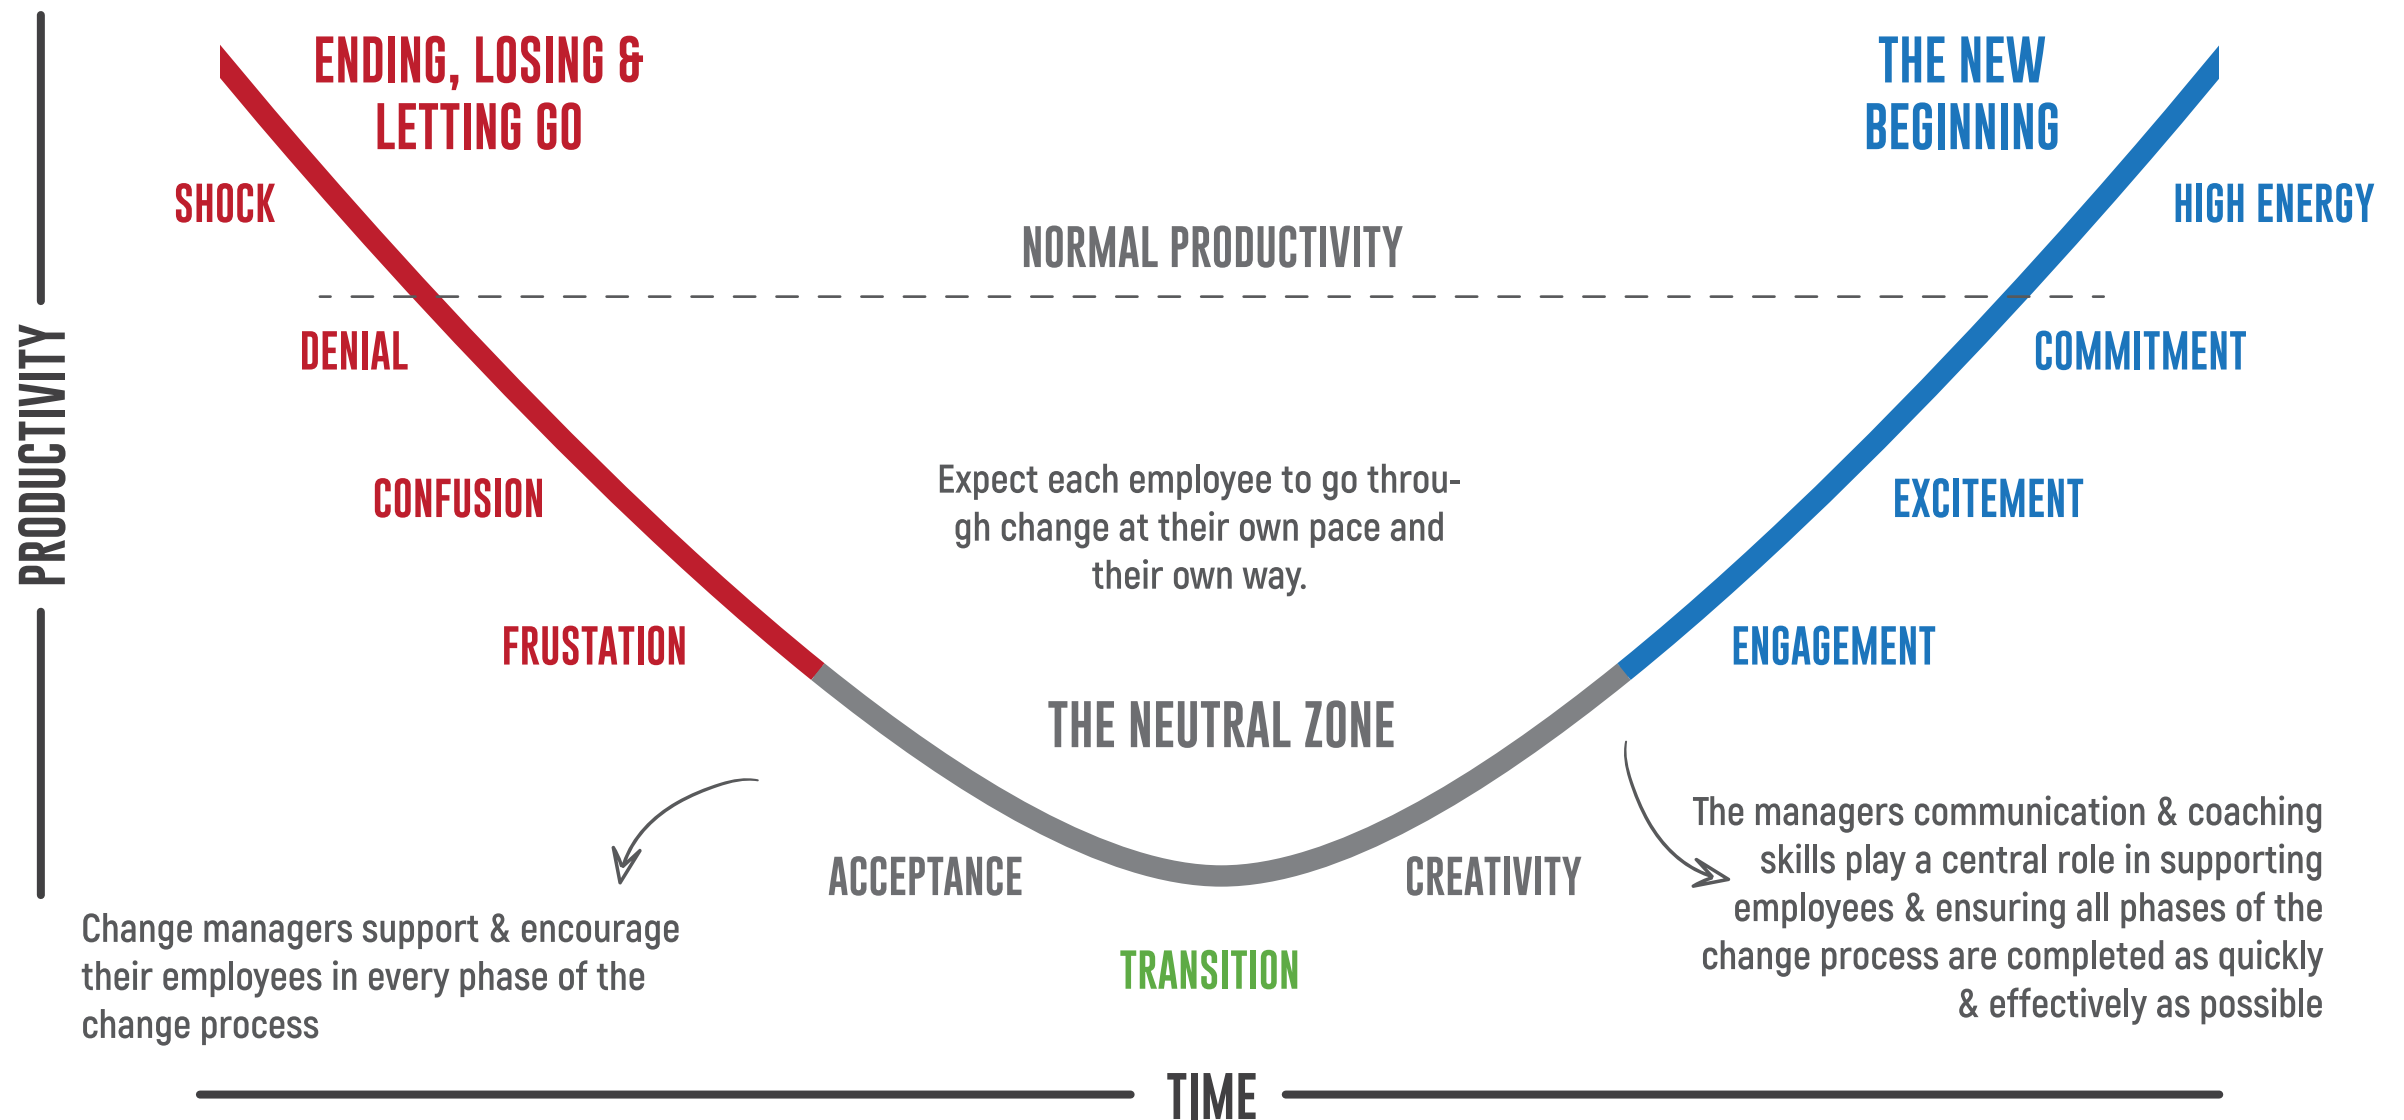

It may make employees reluctant to voice concerns

Poorly timed and excessively detailed information can cause confusion

BRIDGES TRANSITION MODEL
